

STUDY AREA

Bandon, West Cork, is a growing regional town with a population of 8,196 (Census 2022), located approximately 30 km southwest of Cork City. Its role as both a commuter town and gateway to West Cork makes public transport accessibility an important consideration for residents and visitors.

KEY MESSAGE

The highest hotspot classifications occur where weaker relative transport accessibility overlaps with higher relative population vulnerability. These locations should be treated as candidate areas for detailed investigation of pedestrian connections, stop accessibility, scheduled service arrangements or flexible transport options. The classifications do not determine which intervention should be implemented and should not be interpreted as direct evidence of investment priority without further site-level, operational, demand and feasibility assessment.
